What Constitutes a Good Iris?

For the benefit of those who are newly interesting themselves in iris, we would like to repeat, briefly, the qualities considered desirable in these flowers.

Color, altho the most important and most instantly appreciated quality in a flower, is not by itself, the final measure of iris worth.

Besides clarity or richness of color we want a bloom with good form, standards firm and held in closed position at the top, or nearly so, and in pleasing proportion to the falls, which may flare or droop, but which should not be narrow waisted.

The bloom should be large enough to match the length of stem which, for tall-beared iris should be thirty inches or more. A small flower on a tall stem looks "leggy" and a huge flower on a short stem looks "dumpy."

Stems should be branched low and wide so that flowers do not crowd, and they should be strong enough to resist drooping from the weight of the flowers or toppling because of wind or weather. The texture and substance of petals are important too. Whether silky, velvety, smoothly enameled, crisply starched or informally ruffled, the substance of the petals should be tough and durable enough to withstand sun and wind and remain fresh-looking for a reasonable length of time. Colors should not fade too easily in the sun, nor spot too readily from drops of moisture.

Some irises are temperamental. To be generally acceptable an iris should perform well in different sections of the country and be winter-hardy. Unfortunately, some of the loveliest sorts originating in California are not hardy in Northern winters and many of the most beautiful varieties of the Middle West and East are complete failures in California. Quite frequently rhizomes from regions of wide seasonal differences will require an extra year to adjust themselves to the change before blooming.

*It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home,
A heap o' sun an' shadder, an' ye sometimes have t' roam*

*Afore ye really 'preciate the things ye lef' behind,
An' hunger fer 'em somehow, with 'em allus on yer mind*

*It don't make any difference how rich ye get t' be,
How much yer chairs an' tables cost, how great yer luxury;*

*It ain't home t' ye, though it be the palace of a king,
Until somehow yer soul is sort o' wrapped around everything.*

(from Edgar A. Guests's "Home")

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE

Returning from the wars, that particular hero of yours will doubtless revel in the pleasures and comforts of home with a new sense of appreciation for the place developed during many anxious, even anguished days and nights when home was only a happy memory. He may even discover the joys of the flower garden.

Indeed, the garden, with its atmosphere of tranquility and peace, may hold, for him, an especial charm. And the scrawniest iris in the garden will probably look fairer to him than the most exotically beautiful orchid on the island of Bougainville.

ANNIE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANY MORE?

It is to be hoped, of course, that there is a flower garden in connection with the home that he returns to. Without such a touch of homeliness the house has the barren, unlivin' appearance of a house without occupants. For a flower garden is, truly, the symbol of graceful living and a sign to the passer-by that this is the abode of gentlefolk.

FLORAL STARS

And where, in all the floral firmament, can we find more fascinating and satisfactory flowers to plant than iris and hemerocallis? First, the iris, infinite in variety and with a color range not even approached by any other flower; easy to grow; drouth-resistant; rapid of increase; fragrant; adapted to specimen or mass arrangement; and within the reach of every purse.

Later, the hemerocallis, lily-like with beautiful, waxen flowers held aloft on tall wirey stalks, growing more profuse and abundant with the years; hardy; self-reliant; disease and insect-free; untemperamental; easiest of all to grow.

These are the flowers which it pleases Edenwald Gardens to distribute. It is our aim to grow, commercially, every worth-while variety, which has not been superseded, in its price class, by better or more desirable varieties of similar characteristics.

HORSE AND BUGGY BEAUTIES ARE OUTDATED

Both of these flowers have been improved so greatly in recent years that old, out-dated sorts should be discarded and replaced with the modern, superior beauties.

Of the many thousand varieties of irises which have been named and introduced, our catalog lists less than 350. Conscientious dealers discourage the sale of poor and obsolete varieties. Some dealers publish, each year, in their catalogs, lists of the 100 BEST as a guide for their customers. A prominent irisarian in New York State, Mr. Kenneth D. Smith, has, for several years, conducted an unofficial poll of judges of The American Iris Society, and a few over 100 varieties were given a comparative ranking in this poll in 1944.

HONOR ROLLS

We have designated the irises which were included in the above list by placing a star (*) before the name. In addition, we have similarly starred the varieties included in the 1944 lists of two prominent dealers, one in the East and one in the West. A fourth star is contributed by ourselves. Where an iris appears on only one list, only one star appears before its name. If on two lists; two stars; etc. Thus a four-star iris comes pretty well recommended and even a one-star sort is not to be sneezed at.

EVEN THE EXPERTS DISAGREE

We wish to caution you not to over-stress the value of these ratings. Very few iris judges are sufficiently well acquainted with all varieties to render comprehensive judgment, and judges and dealers, alike, often reflect their personal choice, which may not be your choice.

Seasons vary, one year from another; climatic conditions vary geographically; soil composition differs widely; and no-one has yet succeeded in channelling human preferences into one deep groove. Beauty, it has been said, is in the eye of the beholder. A lot of irises with technical faults are highly attractive. Lets not get too hide-bound about the whole thing.

WHO CAN DEFINE "CHARM"?

Some of the non-starred varieties in our catalog are too new to be rated. Others are high-ranking irises of former years and still others are varieties which have never been "great" but have always been charming.

OUR LOCATION—MID-WEST—MID-SOUTH

We hope our modest little catalog will reach many new acquaintances. To them we would like to say that EDENWALD GARDENS, altho growing the best introductions of other dealers, has no introductions of its own. We are under no compulsion to trade compliments with other introducers or to "plug" for any variety.

Our descriptions, altho brief, are meaningful. Our catalog, we know, suffers by comparison with those of larger growers, but we make no apology for the quality of our plants. A trial order is all we ask.

Located in Southern Indiana, our climate is a mixture of North and South. Summers are hot and dry; winters generally record below-zero temperatures. The late George Ade, famous Hoosier humorist, once said that we do not have a climate;—just a series of unexpected weather.

The forty inches of annual rain-fall supplies ample moisture for vigorous growth without irrigation, and the dry summer ripens and toughens the rhizomes. This combination of weather coupled with our fertile silt-loam soil, produces vigorous rhizomes that give superior performance in our own garden and has brought to us many enthusiastic letters from customers all over the country. We'd be happy to receive that kind of a letter from you, too.

TWO CUSTOMERS WHERE ONLY ONE GREW BEFORE

To our former customers, who have been so universally kind and appreciative, we owe our deepest thanks. Without their patronage and their help in getting us new customers among their friends, our sales would not have multiplied as they have. We hope never to disappoint them.

HAT OVER HEART

In conclusion, we would like to express our heartfelt sympathy to those who have had loved ones killed or maimed in war. As parents of a boy in the combat area, at this writing, we can understand your feelings. May God give you strength to bear your misfortune, and may the rest of us honor you always for bearing so great a sacrifice.

Sincerely,

EDITH and WALTER BUSS
"Edo & Walt"

PLEASE DO NOT ASK US TO MAKE CHANGES IN ABOVE COLLECTIONS, BUT MAKE SELECTIONS AS DESIGNATED. Experienced house to house canvassers know the advantages of gaining entry into the house to present their sales talk. Or, at least, a foot in the doorway. Our plants are past-masters of the salesman's art of persuasion. If only they can gain entry into your garden they will convince you, as no words of ours could, that the strength and vigor bred into our plants will prove itself in your garden.

Just to help them get that foot in the doorway, we are making a Special Offer to new customers, and here it is: If your order amounts to $3.00 or more, exclusive of COLLECTIONS, you may receive, as a free extra, the world's largest good iris, WILLIAM A. SETCHELL, the iris that sports blooms nine inches in height and width and does not flop around in doing it either. An iris that, literally, commands attention to its bold proportions, vigorous plant growth, vibrant violet color and all-round masculine beauty.

We hope to have enough stock of William A. Setchell to supply the demand. Since it is impossible to accurately forecast this demand we reserve the right to terminate this offer without notice in which case we will refund your money or you may select, as an alternate, either CHINA MAID, SNOQUALMIE or E. B. WILLIAMSON, all top-flight irises. Please mention in your order, which of the four varieties you prefer as first and second choice.

Your order must amount to $3.00 or more without including COLLECTIONS. The latter are already heavily discounted and will not qualify for any further discount or free iris.

Honolulu, T. H.

"Dear Ede and Walt:

The hemerocallis you mailed on Nov. 9th arrived here about Dec. 18th. In spite of their long voyage they were all very much alive. I gave them each a good drink before planting and all are now doing beautifully. I honestly think they have grown six inches since they were planted. I am quite sure they will grow now that they have such a good start for we do have some varieties here on the island. There is a slope on Mt. Tantalus that is golden with them and a place in Nu'uami Valley where they are always in bloom. Thank you so much for your kindness in shipping them so carefully. Next year I hope to try some iris.

Yours truly,

Fated Flower of the Future

Adaptable to the climate of Maine or California, Canada or Cuba; to soil of sand or clay; acid or alkaline; unaffected by insects or diseases; growing stronger and more beautiful through the years; easy to plant and to grow; no other perennial can approach the dependability of this remarkable flower.

The name "hemerocallis" means "beautiful for a day" because each day produces a fresh set of blooms, frilled; fluted; powdered with gold dust; decorated with distinctive markings; clear-toned or overcast with dusky halos; and continues with this profuse succession of bloom for a solid month—one of the hot summer months at that.

Beside their incomparable garden value they also serve beautifully as cut-flowers, by themselves or in a mixed bouquet. Some varieties have a very pleasing fragrance too.

Date of flowering, as noted, refers to performance in our climate, where the roadside lily "FULVA," begins to bloom about the middle of June.

Special Offer to Former Customers

It has been our custom to include free extra plants with orders both as a token of our appreciation and to make sure the customer receives full and generous value. If the variety so included is already among the customer's collection the gift is pointless and disappointing to both customer and ourselves. For this reason we prefer to privilege the customer to select extras of his own choice in the amount of ten percent of the order, (ten cents for each dollar ordered.) collections excluded. New customers may avail themselves of this offer instead of the free iris offered on P. 14, if preferred, but not both.

Varieties Not Listed

In addition to the iris and daylilies listed we are propagating many other varieties. While we do not have sufficient numbers of such to list we can supply limited quantities. If you have any special wants won't you please drop us a card?

We Pleased These People

But shucks, they pleased us too—twice; once when they sent us their orders and again when they sent us these friendly and spontaneous expressions of their approval.

"My first order from you, last year, was most satisfactory. Grand rhizomes and all gave blooms except one, which, to my way of thinking, is 'something.' "

New York.

"I must say that the iris I got from you last year were the best plants I have bought in the past six years. They were GREAT."

Illinois.

"I was certainly pleased with the fine big plants I received from you last year. I never saw any the size of HAPPY DAYS and SIERRA BLUE. The SNOQUALMIE you sent me as a free gift had four bloom stalks and made the biggest of any of my new plants."

Arizona.

"I wish to express my pleasure with the iris received from you in July. They were such strong plants and have grown so well in the garden that they can hardly be distinguished from old established plants. Some roots from another grower have not done so well. I wish to replace some of these and that is why I am ordering again."

Wisconsin.

"I was delighted with the iris I got from you last year. I got the $5 collection and every one of them bloomed and were lovely."

Oklahoma.

"Every iris from Edenwald survived last winter, which was a tough one with no snow for protection. In the next row I lost 4 of a collection of 16 from a much-advertised Western garden. I will try some more."

Michigan.

"The iris I got from you last summer were the finest I've ever bought and you will get my orders hereafter. They are all budding to bloom now and are fine looking plants."

West Virginia.

"Find enclosed, check for some more of your lovely iris plants. I have never seen finer rhizomes than you send out. All I ordered last summer are blooming now. I have had dozens of people here to see the blooms and have told them about your Indiana gardens. A friend ordered from two other gardens last year after our recommendation to order from you and he has learned his lesson."

Ohio.

"I am delighted with the iris I ordered. They arrived in perfect condition. You 'hoped to please me' and you did. I expected small rhizomes because I paid less than I would have from other growers. I made a great saving and received better plants. Thank you for the extra SNOQUALMIE. It was a generous gift. I hope to send you a much larger order next year."

Washington.

"I was delighted with my order. The rhizomes are the finest I have ever received. The hemerocallis have gone right on growing. I am eagerly awaiting their blooming season as these are my first ones. Thanks for the attention you have given my orders and you may expect to hear from me another year."

North Carolina.

"This is my third order to you. I am delighted with the big healthy rhizomes and your prompt attention to my orders. No more shopping around for me."

Texas.

"May I say how pleased I was with the plants? We have had iris from a number of different sources this season, in some cases the same varieties you sent and I think you deserve a bouquet for the very nice rhizomes. We were tremendously pleased with them and hope you will keep us on your mailing list."

Canada.

"The iris arrived while I was in the hospital. My son-in-law said you sent the best plants he ever saw and I am sure they were because they are all growing fine. And thanks so much for the extra."

Iowa.

"The iris came and I must say they are the finest specimens I have received to date. The plants are simply enormous. I have some of the latest introductions from the leading iris growers in the U. S. and this was my first order. I will order more from you next year."

Missouri.

"I want to say that I have bought iris from quite a number of growers but yours surpass all of them in size and freshness so far. I believe that all of yours will bloom the first year and I'm afraid I can't say that for a good many of the others and some of them from supposedly top-notchers such as Anything I need and can find in your list will be ordered from you in the future."

Colorado.

"Dear friends:

I was certainly pleased with your recent iris shipment, which reached here in excellent shape. The plants were simply huge and so healthy looking. I find iris more drought-resistant than most other perennials. They have done well here. While we are only 7 or 8 miles from the Mexican border we are at an altitude of nearly 6000 feet, and it is much cooler than some parts of Arizona.

Yours truly,

.....Ariz."
